

New Developments in the Economics of Aging and Longevity

In this talk I introduce a new methodology to measure aging, the health deficit index. I develop a simple model of aging and longevity and use it to assess how much of cross-country differences in life expectancy can be explained by income. In an application, I demonstrate the impact of hunger in childhood on the speed of aging in old age.